i took two years of latin at grinnell iowa high school and two years of french at cornell college but i never really committed to using these languages however when i spent three years in mozambique i had an opportunity to pursue the portuguese language in an everyday situation when i returned to the u s i studied the spoken and written form of the language with a brazilian speaking partner and developed a useful fluency i then decided to use the basics of portuguese in the study of spanish i had a number of spanish speaking partners did some work assignments in tehuacan mexico and earned an m a from the university of leon using some creativity i was able to read write and converse in spanish as often as i wished in my places of residence in iowa and texas i have written this book of bilingual essays called gringoismos which is a presentation of personal experiences in the hispanic culture as well as some take offs on spanish writings

i like the idea of a sentimental historical approach to articles about grinnell and other topics maybe there is no past or no future only the present i have a good memory which is my main research tool share ideas and establish contact with old friends and others somehow i believe the blogs on aging are of some value to others feedback confirms that it gives me something worthwhile to do too much leisure can be the booby prize of retirement as can be too much activity this is a collection of essays which i have written and arranged in a reverse chronological order starting with the most recent and moving back in time with the others the main topic of the articles is grinnell iowa my hometown but there are also other subjects discussed they are a historic nostalgic treatment of many facets of life there in the 1940s and 1950s including grinnell college and grinnell high school sporting events customs in the neighborhoods back then and the inevitable topic of aging and life as a septuagenarian the articles on aging are written with my ghs class of 1957 classmates in mind
